Great job!

Your product vision statement is good. I'm taking a point off because it's not a sentence, which the project description specified.

Your PBIs are great. I like that you have an easy-to-read name followed by a description and that you have indicated prerequisites. My only quibble is that you don't have any PBIs for initial set up of the server environment or your own development environments. It's not clear that you've picked a platform, but once you've picked a platform, it often takes significant effort to get that platform installed, configured, and working with your development tools. I could also quibble with some of your effort estimates, but those are always hard to get right.
